air intervening. But the upper limit Dr. Timm has checked—as of exactly the same to 176,000—the upper limit Dr. Timm has checked—as of exactly the same pitch. Although this 'ultra-range' comprises well over three octaves, to us all the 36 tones physically possible seem stereotyped and exactly like the highest tone we can hear in the normal way when it reaches us through the air.

Nature had therefore to make a particularly brilliant invention to endow birds, mammals, and men with the gift of hearing so many different tones. This invention is the basilar membrane of the inner ear.

What does the inner ear in fact do? Let us assume we hear the three octaves above middle C, and then the stirrup vibrates 2,048 times per second on the fluid column of the cochlea. But it sounds different if we hear the same one from a violin or a flute. The reason is that with every instrument the
